

Cpl. George H. Watt
Medical Detachment
Jackson Air Base
Jackson, Miss.

Jackson
Nov 4
12 M
1943
Miss.

Miss Sally Loving
5817 – N. Washington Blvd.
Arlington, Va.

Nov. 3, 1943.

Dear Miss Loving,

I was very glad and surprised to hear from you. I have thought about the days I spent in your homeroom and class often and really don't know why I haven't written sooner.

I have been in the following places in the order given; Camp Lee, Va., Kearns, Utah, Memphis, Tenn and last here at Jackson, Mississippi.

I have an interesting job in the station hospital here although it is not what I went to school for; I didn't have to I knew the work. I work on the hospital information desk and meet all the visitors and others who come to the hospital. As you probably know I like a job that permits me to meet the public & people in general. I was trained as an x-ray technician at the Army School of [illegible] possibly Radiotechnology] in Memphis but only worked in that dept [illegible] for two weeks because they had enough x-ray technicians already.

I expect to be home on a long wanted furlough sometime this month and I shall come see you. I can talk and tell you of my experiences better than write so I'll see you soon.

Your Friend,

George Watt

P.S. If Dick knows I'm coming before I get there he'll tell you.